One of the many things I learned, and organizations—my Fellowship gave me a whole new perspective on my life and my work. Virginia had a lifelong habit of mind—what she didn't know, she eagerly learned. Her work ethic was renowned in the community and it became clear that Virginia Piper's investment in a cause meant that the individuals and organizations had been thoroughly researched and vetted. Her reputation as a philanthropist inspired others—one saying, "If it's good enough for Virginia, then it's good enough for me."
